

Each function “scales” the array grows larger and as it grows it grows exponentially. While testing each function we see that the append array goes in a linear manner.

Between the 2 functions we see that one is faster than the other one. The slower one (`.unshift`) method because of the way how it shifts between each number then pushes it on the other hand the `.push` just adds the number to the end of the array.